THEOLOGY

FALL 2018

Sept. 8, 15 & 22

Reading the New Testament in Times Like These

The political atmosphere seems more tense than it has for a number of decades.

This three-part study will explore what the New Testament has to say about how we participate in discussions about values and policies and what values the New Testament supports.

We will give attention to how Jesus and Paul related to the government and its policies and see what they say about what God wants for all of God's people.

The Lay School of Theology is a continuing education program for all who wish to enrich their Christian faith.

Dr. Jerry Sumney
Professor of Biblical Studies
Lexington Theological Seminary

Dr. Sumney is a member of the Society of Biblical Literature and is past president for the Southeastern Region of the Society. At the national level, he also served as the chair of the steering committee for the Theology of the Disputed Paulines Group from 1996-2001 and as the chair of the steering committee for the Disputed Paulines Section from 2004-2012. Sumney has presented papers at regional, national, and international academic conferences. He has written numerous articles and seven books. He has also led numerous workshops for elders and deacons, and Bible study workshops and series, including in the Lay School of Theology at LTS and in the school for licensed ministers sponsored by the Kentucky region of the Christian Church.
